Where Brazil's Energy Year Begins

In Brazil, the energy sector year begins at iBEM, where all energies come together in a single environment. For three days, the Convention Centre in vibrant, historic Salvador becomes the stage for strategic discussions and technical activities that set the tone for Brazil's energy year ahead.

iBEM promotes energy security and efficiency through the diversification of energy sources and the integration between them. Unlike other events held throughout the year that focus on specific energies, iBEM embraces the full spectrum of the energy sector, highlighting the diversity of Brazil's energy matrix as one of the country's greatest strategic strengths and a benchmark in the global energy landscape.

Bringing together leaders, professionals, researchers, companies and institutions from across the energy industry, iBEM serves as the ideal meeting point for business development, technical and academic exchange, public policy dialogue and high-level networking.

Why in Brazil's NORTHEAST?

iBEM invites you to look at Brazil's energy sector from a perspective afar of the country's main decision-making centers. This vast Brazilian region is strategic to national energy security, as it is home to a significant share of the country's power generation. It is a true hub of opportunities and a region that inspires the global energy sector as a leading example of a diversified energy mix.

WHY IN SALVADOR?

Few cities offer as many attractions as Salvador for those visiting for an event or on business. The capital of Bahia continues to combine the advantages of a major capital city, with a strong flight network, excellent hotel infrastructure, and a world-class convention center, with the unique qualities of a tourism destination unlike any other in the world, marked by its historical significance, natural beauty, and distinctive culture. Let yourself be captivated by the famous warmth and hospitality of the people of Bahia and discover the city of all saints, all orixás... and all energies!

WHY EXHIBIT AT

Util.e Expo is the meeting point between those who provide industrial solutions and those who make decisions about them. In a highly technical and business-oriented environment, technology, equipment, and service providers showcase their portfolios, conduct demonstrations, launch new solutions, and build relationships with managers and decision-makers from Brazil's largest industries and energy consumers.

The exhibition is structured around four thematic areas — Electrical Systems and Energy Management, Industrial Equipment and Utilities, Maintenance and Reliability, and Industry 4.0 and Decarbonization — covering the full range of needs, from the factory floor to strategic planning. To meet different objectives and accommodate companies of different sizes, the event offers flexible formats: from exhibition counters — providing a qualified presence with excellent value for money — to customized booths and strategic lounges, designed to increase brand visibility and create the ideal environment for relationship-building and business generation.
